New View Of Foreign Policy

Cuba, Berlin Seen As Joint Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Administration officials are beginning to regard Berlin and Cuba less and less as separate problems, and more and more as two closely related trouble spots.

For example, officials conceded that some recent administration talk of a possible "first-class Berlin crisis by Christmas" was aimed at reminding proponents of an invasion of Cuba that Berlin remains the more serious situation and U.S. policy on Cuba could seriously affect Berlin events.

Officials believe U.S. military action in Cuba or a full blockade, which international law regards as an act of war, could bring Soviet reprisals in other parts of the world—in all likelihood, Berlin.

Furthermore, they believe it would cause a falling-out with U.S. Allies at the very time when. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

Baby Sitting Service Will Continue Now

By SCOOP LEWIS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Levittown's Community Baby Sitting Service, started seven years ago by a woman who wanted a job for her two daughters, will continue to operate under new management.

This gladdening news to hundreds of Levittown area families was disclosed today by Mrs. Veretta W. Parks, founder of the now widely-used and popular service.

Mrs. Parks, who lives at 44 New Pond Lane, North Park, decided to stop operations as of yesterday. "My reasons are many and varied," she said in reluctantly announcing her decision.

New Operator

"However," Mrs. Parks declared today, "I have found someone willing to take it over and am glad to say that the baby sitting service will continue to be run on a non-profit basis as it has been the past seven years."

Fur Cape Is Stolen

A fur stole cape, valued at approximately $300, was stolen from a Levittown home which was burglarized last night, Bristol Township police reported today.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bickel of 27 Keystone Lane, Kenwood, told police they were out for about two hours last night. Upon returning home at 9:10 p.m., they said they saw where someone had entered the house by forcing entry through the kitchen door.

Patrolman James Dunn and Detective William Edmond, upon investigation found that a pry bar or screwdriver had been used to gain entrance.

The Bickels found their bedrooms ransacked but reported the only thing missing was Mrs. Bickel's natural Norwegian blue fox stole cape.

30 Firms Host Teachers

Talks Stress Aims

Local industries and businesses came under close inspection today as 631 teachers from local schools took part in the annual Business, Industry and Education Day sponsored by the Lower Bucks County Chamber of Commerce.

The teachers, and representatives of the host firms, met at Woodrow Wilson High School at 8:30 a.m., and heard H. Robert Afflerbach, chairman of the education committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and Robert Martin, superintendent of the Bristol Township - Delhaas Joint School District, speak on the purposes and aims of the day.

"Little More Insight"

Afflerbach told the teachers, gathered in the school auditorium, that the day was intended "to give you a little more insight into your students and the area in which you live."

Martin later spoke on the same theme.

"Since the end of World War Two," he said, "we have become increasingly indoctrinated with the idea of world consciousness. We have developed a sense of the brotherhood of man. But I wonder if in this we have lost sight of the individual unit."

The B-I-E days gave the teachers an opportunity to become more acquainted with their own locality, he said, and also they might learn from industry things that might help them in their own careers.

New Methods

"Today our teachers will have opportunity of seeing industry using new methods which can be applied to education. Here is an opportunity to climb out of our rut," he said.

The teachers themselves had the task of preparing their students to assume responsibilities in. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 8)

Board Will Appeal Tax Assessment

By AL CHESTER
Courier-Times Staff Writer

The Falls Township School Board, meeting last night in the cafeteria of the Charles H. Boehm School, voted unanimously to appeal the 1963-64 assessment of U. S. Steel's Fairless Works.

The attorneys for the school board, Frederick Bebbington and T. S. Cadwallader, will file the appeal with the Bucks County Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes before the deadline Nov. 1.

Sporting Wounds 2 Boro Men Face Fighting Charges

Two Bristol men wound up losing more ways than one last night in a pair of scuffles on Buckley St.

Wade Pitman, 23, and Raymond Glochist, 21, both of 638 Spruce St., not only were arrested and face hearings on two charges, from their encounters with two other Bristol men they are accused of beating up, but they wound up sporting wounds.

It all started at 7 p.m. when Sgt. Gaspar Favaroso and Patrolman James Flanagan, Bristol Borough police, received a complaint of a disturbance at the Buckley Bar, Buckley and Spruce Sts.

Carrying Board

Upon arriving at the bar, the police officers said a man was leaving the establishment carrying a length of board about 10 feet long. Seeing the policemen, the man dropped the board and ran.

Questioning the bartender, James McGee of 704 Pine St., police learned that two men had come into the tavern and started an argument with McGee.

A disturbance followed, police said, and the two men proceeded to break up cue sticks which were lying on a pool table. The men started beating McGee about the head and face with the cue sticks, but fled when someone called police.

Thirty minutes later police received another call to investigate

Beckert Says He Opposed Contributions

Bucks County Republican Chairman Paul R. Beckert said this morning that he learned in July or August that Sheriff Harold Dando had been making monthly contributions to the Bucks GOP and he ordered the practice stopped.

Last week Yardley attorney Isaac S. Garb charged that the county GOP demanded and received from Dando monthly "kickbacks" from alleged overpayments of mileage expenses to Dando.

Garb said that the Republican (Continued on Page 3, Col. 3)

K May Outline Strategy

LONDON (UPI) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has called a special meeting of Russia's Communist Central Committee, with Berlin policy among the chief issues to be discussed informed sources said today.

The meeting also, was expected to deal with a variety of current internal problems.

There was diplomatic speculation Khrushchev may present to the party the outlines of his latest plan for a Berlin settlement and ask the party executive to endorse it.

There was still no reliable indication as to what Khrushchev's latest plan may entail for the Soviet-encircled city.

The Soviet leader has maintained a studied silence on Berlin strategy in recent weeks, ever since he announced he would not press for Berlin negotiations until after the United States congressional elections in November.

In the meantime, he has had extensive consultations with most of the satellite Communist leaders in the privacy of his Black Sea holiday resort.

Communist leaders also have been to Moscow for consultations in the Soviet Capital.

East Germany Communist Boss Walter Ulbricht has been to Russia recently, and an East German Military Mission is currently holding secret talks in Moscow.

Temperature Above Normal

Indian summer continued to prevail over Lower Bucks County today as the temperature climbed into the mid 70s.

The mercury had reached 73 degrees at 2 p.m., well above the normal of 57 for this time of the year.

The weatherman promises more of the same tomorrow with the mercury possibly approaching 80.

Elsewhere, tropical storm Ella grew to near-hurricane proportions today and pointed 65-mile-an-hour winds at the Southeastern coast.

The Miami weather bureau advised coastal residents south of Charleston, S.C., to keep posted on the uncertain movements of the season's fifth tropical tempest.

At the moment, Ella isn't offering a definite threat to the South Atlantic coast. But the storm, located 400 miles east of Miami, is expected to intensify to hurricane strength (75 MPH winds or greater) this afternoon or tonight, the weather bureau stated.

Middletown Board Discusses Act 561

Middletown Township's School Board last night indicated that it favored the state's plan to reorganize school districts, but questioned whether the reorganization act should be passed in its present form.

Only one board member, Miss Marguerite Phillips, voted for outright rejection of Act 561.

The board voted, five to one, that the act did need some modification, with one member abstaining.

The vote was taken in answer to a request by the legislative committee of the County board of school directors, which is polling all Bucks County school boards on five questions. Inquiry on each of the questions about Act 561 is one of the questions.

SUVA, Fiji Island (UPI) — The two men were almost dead from hunger, thirst and exposure when they were washed ashore 30 miles south of here in a remote corner of the South Pacific Monday.

They babbled a confused but insistent story of shipwreck and 11 mates still stranded without food or water on a tiny, barren reef in mid-ocean.

The ship had been missing for more than three months.

Word was flashed to New Zealand officials, who dispatched a

Sunderland flying boat carrying food, water and medical supplies. The plane set down beside Milnera Reef, 300 miles south of Suva, today and radioed that it was preparing to take on the shipwrecked men.

But there were no longer 11 survivors. The plane's crew found only seven men, huddled under the wreckage of a Japanese fish-

Priest, Neighbor Help Fight Fire

Efforts of a Catholic priest and a neighbor minimized damage to a Middletown Township home which was hit by fire at 1 p.m. yesterday.

The blaze, which started in the kitchen of the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Shields, 2661 Trenton Road, between Woodbourne Road and Queen of the Universe Church, caused damage estimated at $3,000, firemen reported.

When the fire broke out, the Rev. Cyril Ponisciak, assistant pastor of Queen of the Universe Church, Levittown, and Albert A. Anderson of 1050 Woodbourne Road, were in the house talking with Mrs. Shields.

Mrs. Shields' husband was in Bristol at the time, having work done on his car.

The Shields' operate the Levittown Driving School from their home.

Mrs. Shields said she and Father Ponisciak and Anderson were conversing on the enclosed porch at the time. "Suddenly I heard something fall in the kitchen," she said.

At first Mrs. Shields let the noise go by unheeded. "But next I heard a crash," she stated. Upon opening the door, between the kitchen and porch, Mrs. Shields found "the whole place on fire."

While Mrs. Shields went to the porch telephone and called the operator, Father Ponisciak and Anderson went outside and grabbed a garden hose and began to

To Meet On Financing
Sewers Approved
For Old Tullytown

Final plans for a proposed sewer installation project in the old section of Tullytown Borough are expected to be outlined at a special meeting of the borough council next Monday, it was announced at a council meeting last night.

Tullytown Borough Council decided unanimously in favor of the estimated $192,000 project, and set the special meeting to select the method of financing the project.

The council will decide on either a bond issue or the front-footage method, where the individual homeowner would be charged a certain amount for the number of feet of installation on his property.

It was learned that approximately 14,000 lineal feet in the proposed plan are assessable at $3.07 a foot. Unassessable properties would be financed through a bond issue.

There is no sewer line existing in the borough today. Sewage is disposed of through cesspools or septic tanks.

If final plans are approved, the project would get underway by next spring.

A five-man water and sewer authority is expected to be appointed by the council at the special meeting, empowered to engage an engineering firm and to float bonds to get the project underway.

Lighting System

Another lighting project apparently came to a head last night, when the council approved a plan which would provide a better lighting system in the borough.

This plan will also be finalized at the Monday meeting.

Edward Hunt, chairman of the street committee, said that about 32 extra utility poles would be installed, and all of Tullytown Borough would receive increased wattage.

Hunt pointed out that lights would be placed at the ramp leading to the Courier-Times newspaper building, and on and under the Tullytown bridge.

The committee chairman said that the Philadelphia Electric Co. recently completed a survey of the area, and is awaiting the go-ahead for installation.

He explained that the project would subsequently cost the borough an additional $1,600 in lighting bills for a year.

Car Parking

Council received a letter from residents in the Lakeside section of Levittown last night, protesting the parking of cars along the Tullytown-Fallsington Road.

The council voted unanimously to disallow any parking on the road at any time, particularly around the Leaf Lane section.

Stanley Rutkowski, council solicitor, was delegated to study the legality of this decision, however, and to submit recommendations.

The legality of the move was questioned when it was pointed out that the road is actually state-owned, and the Tullytown border runs through the center of the road, and ends just short of the Mill Creek Parkway.

Hazardous Condition

The council agreed that the parking of cars near where building are currently being constructed on the road, creates a hazardous condition.

A zoning commission to study a proposed rezoning of Tullytown and to submit a zoning ordinance to the council for adoption, was selected last night.

Members of the new commission include John Lucisano, Ernest Janson, Anthony Platzia, Harry Malcolm and Norman Brill.

A series of public hearings will be scheduled to air protests or suggestions, it was pointed out.

for the sake of Berlin, maximum allied unity would be needed.

Employee Locked
In Center Store

An employee of the Food Fair at the Levittown Shopping Center was overtime on the job last night—but it really wasn't necessary.

Joseph Burke, of Philadelphia, a meat cutter, was turning off electrical equipment in the basement of the store when the lock on the front door of the market clicked shut.

The manager of the store had inadvertently locked Burke inside.

The employee called the manager of the store at home, but there was no answer. He then called the Tullytown Borough police, and Patrolman John Steen answered the call.

Patrolman Steen, in turn, called the store's protective agency, and, after several hours of unrelenting overtime, Burke was finally released.

Going in Circles
By Ben McElveen

Several members of Morrisville Borough Council, after their stormy meeting last week, went out for a snack at a local diner.

Robert H. Steward, borough manager, was among the diners who included Councilmen Neal Nolan, Michael Demech, Joseph Catania, Nicholas Pelehaty and the press.

He distributed several copies of a little blue pamphlet entitled, "How To Get A Ticket Fixed." At least two of the councilmen were seen reading it.

Another manager, Robert F. Erwin, of Falls Township, authored the booklet.

There's a moral to the tale, too.

After Erwin humorously cites how to fix tickets, he seriously offers this advice:

"Now that you know how to go about getting a ticket fixed—Don't try it."

"Here is why," adds Erwin, who then lists the reasons why. Among the "why's" are:

"Policemen, especially, lose their incentive to do a good job, if they make a justified arrest only to have it disregarded."

"Why should one guilty man pay if another just as guilty goes free?"

"It gives the one that pays a feeling of being in the wrong class or inferior. He gets to feel everything is corrupt."

Erwin, who copyrighted his pamphlet in 1962, says he has never received a dime from it. Concludes Erwin: "Any movement to do away with fixes is a step in the right direction. We hope as you pass this pamphlet on, it will help add a death sentence to the act of fixing tickets."

A recent check with Erwin about the interesting little pamphlet reveals he was inspired to write it after talking to a former local state policeman, who said the constant cry he heard was, "How do you get a ticket fixed?" This was Erwin's reply.

Erwin, who lives in the Oxford Valley section of Falls Township, says he's written several other booklets, although none quite so popular as this one. A group up around Reading has reprinted quite a few thousand copies, and he says he still gets occasional requests for it, so much so it was just re-issued.

Erwin, who also wrote, "What Is A Supervisor?" several years ago, currently has penned one titled, "How To Register A Complaint With Your Municipality." He says it's not in print yet but anybody who wants it, may soon be able to have a copy.

Meaning, Erwin is contemplating another. The title? "How To Deal With The Press."

National Award For Makefield Man

Dr. E. Donald Longenecker of Lower Makefield Township last night proudly displayed the Gallantry Award before his family at their colonial-ranch home on Edgewood Road. They are (from left) his son, Barry J., age 7; daughter, Donna, B., age 8, and his wife, Nancy. Dr. Longenecker, who is chairman and acting administrator of Valley Day School in Woodside and a Penn State assistant professor at the Ogontz campus, received the annual award from the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Philadelphia "in recognition of an outstanding adjustment to a severe physical handicap" and "for valiant spirit and determination exhibited in building a normal, successful life." organization required Dando to turn over a percentage of his mileage payments to the party before he received the party's endorsement for re-election in 1961.

3-Year Period

Records on file with the Bucks County Board of Elections, Garb said, show that Dando made monthly contributions to the party of $1,468.08 over a period of three years, 1959 to 1961.

Beckert said this morning: "I've been chairman of the Republican party since June of 1962. As soon as these contributions by Mr. Dando were brought to my attention, I ordered the practice stopped."

Beckert, who is also county district attorney, said that he recognized that contributions of this type are accepted methods by political parties to raise necessary funds.

Won't Permit This Method

"So long as I am chairman I shall not permit this method of fund raising," Beckert said. "This may be naive on my part, but I stand firm on my own convictions that political funds should come from our citizens who want good public service and good government. This should be their investment in preserving and strengthening our two party system of government."

Beckert reiterated his earlier position that Dando is not guilty of any criminal intent in billing the county on a paper mileage basis. Garb, Democratic candidate for state assembly, claims that Dando has been overpaid an estimated $50,000 in mileage reimbursements by the county.

Filed Complaints

He and two other Democratic attorneys in August filed complaints with the district attorney's office charging Dando with "expense account padding." After an investigation Beckert ruled that Dando's system of billing the county was "improper" and urged the county commissioners to recover any overpaid funds.

"Whether Mr. Dando made contributions to the United Fund of the Salvation Army or to the Republican party in no way has anything to do with criminal intent," Beckert said.

No Comment

Beckert this morning said he had "no comment" about charges filed with his office which claim that all GOP candidates for county office in the 1961 election, including Beckert and Dando, were "maced." The charges were filed by Doylestown attorney Robert W. Valmont, the Democratic candidate for state senate.

Valmont maintains that the GOP candidates were required to contribute five per cent of their anticipated four-year salaries to the party campaign fund.

Bar Board
Plans Meeting

Ward F. Clark, attorney for the Bucks County Bar Association, said today that it would be up to the Association's board of directors to determine whether or not to answer Dr. Glenn W. Bricker's questionnaire. He indicated that the board would meet in the near future.

Dr. Bricker yesterday instructed some 122 members of the bar to answer, within 20 days, 10 questions regarding his alleged law practice.

The bar association has accused Bricker, a Levittown physician of illegally engaging in the practice of law and has asked the Bucks County court to restrain him from doing so.

Challenge Made

Dr. Bricker yesterday challenged each member of the bar to give under oath the circumstances under which he is allegedly engaged in law practice.

The doctor is president of the Medical Research Service Inc. of Philadelphia. The doctor and the corporation were both named as co-defendants in the bar association's suit filed last Tuesday in Bucks County Common Pleas Court.

Busy Day For United Fund

The Bucks County United Fund Campaign headquarters at 129 S. Bellevue Ave., Penedel, will be humming tomorrow, "Report Day."

Paul Sauerbry, Lower Bucks campaign chairman, said the office will be open from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m., to handle reports from volunteers.

Sauerbry said the first floor will be cleared so that volunteers making returns will not be delayed.

"We expect to have a continual flow of volunteers coming into headquarters tomorrow," Sauerbry said, "and I am hopeful that Lower Bucks County will have reported a minimum of $200,000 when the office closes in the afternoon."

"On the basis of the present assessment rate," Bebbington stated, "the school district of Falls would lose $177,000."

Could Rescind Motion

In introducing the resolution to the board, Cadwallader said that although the resolution must be filed by Nov. 1, the board could rescind the resolution at a later date if the members changed their minds.

As presented to the board, the resolution reads as follows:

"Resolved that the proper officers of the Board of School Directors of the Township of Falls be and they are hereby authorized and directed to appeal to the Bucks County Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes the 1963 assessment of the Fairless Works of U.S. Steel, amounting to $3,963,730 for land, $25,903,570 for improvements, making a total of $29,867,300, under the act of June 25, 1931."

Quick Vote

There was little discussion among the five board members present after the resolution was read. The quick vote led to an adjournment within 10 minutes.

One of the spectators, Harold Fuchs, president of the Pennsylvania Heights Civic Association, said he was concerned about how the school board would make up the lost revenue.

Neshaminy Business Manager John Paul and Middletown Township Safety Officer George Haller were scheduled to survey the intersection tomorrow.

Madway said he believed the guard should be replaced regardless of Paul's possible recommendations that the guard not be hired.

The elements had taken their toll.

According to the two men who reached Fiji Monday, three persons went down when the ship went aground and sank a few days after leaving Tonga on what would have been a 3,500-mile trip to Auckland, New Zealand.

Struggle For Survival

The 14 remaining Tongans scrambled onto the reef and took shelter under the shattered hull. They began the long struggle for survival, eating shellfish from pools among the coral and catching fish with hooks made from shells.

It was not known how the men lived without fresh water.

Finally, they decided to build two rafts with timber from the wrecked trawler, driftwood and rope. Ten days ago, three men set out to find help.

One of them started out alone on a raft and apparently disappeared.

The other two made it to Fiji after drifting without food or water and suffering intensely from the burning sun. They told Fiji authorities they had given up hope of reaching land and could not remember reaching shore.

board voted five to one that the amount of state reimbursement to the school district should be increased.

Present reimbursement is $5,800 per teaching unit with the present cost per teaching unit now estimated at $12,000. Local taxes must make up the difference.

The board also voted in favor of increasing state reimbursement for transportation and for clarifying legislation for establishing a community college.

Board Abstains

On a question concerning "more appropriate interpretation of the prevailing wage act," the majority of the board abstained. The wage act concerns wages paid to workmen on construction of schools.

In other action, the board recommended that a Neshaminy School District policy be formulated that would permit admission of kindergarten children into the district schools provided their application are submitted within six months of the start of the September term and, provided there is room in a class.

William Rakita, board president, said if the recommendation is rejected by the joint board, the Middletown Board may go ahead and create its own policy on the subject.

A Clarification

The decision, the result of a request by parents of a child just moved into the district, was something of a clarification.

No school policy exists on kindergarten children playing two weeks after the term begins. The Neshaminy District policy states that children cannot be admitted to higher grades if they apply more than two weeks late, except on a transfer basis.

Once a child reaches eight years of age, there is no further problem. State law requires children of this age to attend school.

The board accepted the resignation of its representative, Dr. Kenneth Runquist, from the township parks board, but did not name a replacement immediately. Runquist moved from the school district recently.

Letter Received

The board referred to the Neshaminy District administration a letter from the Samuel Everitt Elementary School PTA which requested that a school crossing guard be stationed at the intersection of Snowball Drive and Forsythia Crossing.

The board decided to take up the request again on Oct. 23, just before the Neshaminy joint board meeting.

Board member M. L. Madway said he could see no reason for delay. He said he was familiar with the crossing and was convinced a guard should be placed at the intersection.

Economy Move

A guard had been on duty at the crossing in previous years but was removed this year in an economy move.

Rakita said he feared that if the guard was replaced, it would be a precedent for placing of other guards throughout the district.

Neshaminy Business Manager John Paul and Middletown Township Safety Officer George Haller were scheduled to survey the intersection tomorrow.

Madway said he believed the guard should be replaced regardless of Paul's possible recommendations that the guard not be hired.

er, began her new duties today. The name of the organization will remain the same — Levittown Community Baby Sitting Service.

Mrs. Campbell, being supported by a veteran's pension, is unable to work and thus, as Mrs. Parks stated, "has time on her hands to handle the operation."

Names Turned Over

Names of baby sitters, most of whom are adults, have been turned over to Mrs. Campbell by Mrs. Parks.

Mrs. Parks, looking back over the past seven years, reflected on the many enjoyable and sometimes unusual experiences she encountered while talking to parents in the Levittown area.

"Many sitters have come and gone over the years," she remarked, "some have left the area and at least four have died."

Marriage Developed

Mrs. Parks even noted that one marriage came about as the result of a baby-sitting job. "I guess I had better explain that one," she added.

"A lady took care of children at her home," Mrs. Parks recalled, "and several years later married their father when both were available for marriage."

When she began the baby-sitting service back in 1955, Mrs. Parks started with the primary objective of providing her two teenage girls with part-time jobs.

"Then only teenagers were baby sitters," she stated. "But as the year wore on, more and more adults made themselves for baby sitting services, particularly during the day when mothers were shopping or playing bridge."

Mrs. Parks pointed out that teenagers were unable to fill the daytime baby-sitting needs because of school.

Mrs. Parks Thankful

Mrs. Parks is most thankful for all the baby sitters who have worked with her over the years. "I only hope I have been of some small help to parents in their baby-sitting problems," she concluded.

From now on if you're looking for a baby sitter, call WI 3-0277. And as Mrs. Parks stated, "Mrs. Campbell will most certainly do a fine job in meeting your needs."

Mrs. Shields, meanwhile, was busy scurrying about to get her pet dog and cat to safety. She broke a front window in the house and got the dog outside safely. The cat, she said, was hiding behind a couch in the living room and was not affected by the smoke which filled the house.

The Shields' daughter, Yvonne, was in school at Queen of the Universe where she is a sixth grade student.

Car On Rack

Shields, who normally would be home for lunch at the time the fire broke out, was unable to render assistance since his car was up on a rack at a Bristol service station. Mrs. Shields notified him by phone of the fire.

Chet Wheeler, chief engineer with the William Penn Fire Co. of Hultmeville, was the first to arrive on the scene after Mrs. Shields called for help. He was forced to climb into the house on hands and knees.

Upon finding the fire, Wheeler took in a booster line and at the same time used a fog spray to dispel the heavy smoke.

Fire Chief Albert Tomlinson said the blaze was extinguished in 25 minutes with the Penedel Fire Company rendering assistance.

Sam Lees, Middletown Township building inspector, was also at the scene.

While damage was confined to the kitchen, the heavy smoke throughout the house forced the Shields family to take up temporary quarters last night at the Bristol Motel. The Shields have lived at the Trenton Road address since July, 1961, and had recently remodeled the home.

The dogs, meanwhile are safely quartered at a veterinarian's, Mrs. Shields explained.

All this was seen by western diplomats as part of an overall plan on the part of Khrushchev to clear the decks in preparation for major Berlin policy decisions.

British experts do not believe that these decisions will necessarily amount to a final, forceful showdown over the divided city in coming weeks.

They anticipate rather a new diplomatic approach to the west, notably the United States, possibly a so-called "last effort" before the Kremlin takes the plunge towards a separate peace with East Germany.

the region, which Martin described as "the heart of the Delaware Valley."

Industry wishes to show the teachers the part that it played in the economic life of the community.

"Industry wishes you to be aware of its products and the services that it renders," he said.

Visit 30 Firms

After the introductory talks, the teachers and industrial representatives made their way by bus and car to the 30 firms acting as hosts for the day. The teachers were divided into groups, each of which visited one of the firms.

This is the fourth year in which visits of this nature have been held. In the spring, industrial and business representatives visit local schools, and in the fall the teachers repay the visit.

The teachers taking part today came from the Bensalem, Bristol Township, Morrisville and Pottsville school districts. Next year it will be the turn of the other school districts of Lower Bucks.

the hospital with abrasions of the legs and head, which Gallagher said had been inflicted by two men.

Arriving at the hospital, police spotted Gochrist standing in the parking lot. It was later learned that he had refused treatment at the hospital for lacerations of the head.

Gallagher immediately identified Gochrist as one of the assailants. Later, Gallagher identified Pitman as the other assailant. McGee then identified Gochrist as the man who beat him about the head and face with a cue stick.

Pitman and Gochrist, charged with aggravated assault and battery and disorderly conduct, were each released in $1,000 bail for a further hearing Thursday night before Justice of the Peace Peter J. Harkins.

Movie Planned
By Leader PTA

A motion picture entitled "The Alphabet Conspiracy" will highlight the meeting of the George M. Leader PTA to be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Child Development Center, 280 Red Cedar Drive, Levittown.

The film will be presented through the courtesy of the Bell Telephone Company.

Rev. Elton P. Richards Jr., pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, Levittown, will deliver the invocation.

Following the business meeting, refreshments will be served by the hospitality committee.
